THE LOST PROJECT is a collection of various genre writing and past musical ideas that are now made into present day songs. There are no set boundaries except for the music to sound "clean". Being that the writing is never the same, the name fits the "lost" direction that the band is going towards. Broadening their approach, The Lost Project strives of writing truthful, easy music. The band is dedicated to being the most dynamic, universal groups who can have at least one song in their set that each person can identify with and say, "I like that song".
