

To have you here is truly a treat! Just a few things before taking your seat...

#1) Most important of all: know when the show starts. If you arrive late, you may miss the best part!

Plus getting to your seat after the lights go down disrupts all the other folks you'll be sitting around

#2) A second faux pas is when that cell phone you bring begins to light up, vibrate, or ring

During a show, don't take a call and don't text. The hundreds of people you disrupt will stare at you very vexed

#3) Babies, we love 'em - they're simply dolls. Just be ready to exit if the one you bring bawls!

#4) We also need to make the next point crystal clear: absolutely no gum is allowed in here!

Our theatres are beautiful and we hope to keep them that way. If you leave gum on the ground, the theatres decay!

#5) Finally, we ask you to be courteous in your leaving. Unless you just must (à la #3), you're ours for the evening

Please wait till intermission to exit your row, and then again to the end so you can applaud the show.

Skedaddling up the aisles before the performance concludes is to the cast, crew, and audience terribly rude.

All in all, live events make for a one-of-a-kind attraction; we just prefer to let the billed act create the action 😊

Thank you,

The Majestic and Charline McCombs Empire Theatres!

---

Is there a dress code?

Dress up if you want to! There is no dress code for attending shows at the Majestic Theatre, but depending on the type of performance, you may want to make it extra special by dressing up. Think business casual attire for non-Opening Night Performances of a Broadway Across America production. If you do attend on Opening Night, the general attire might be more formal. Nonetheless, we're happy to welcome you even in jeans and a clean shirt.

A word of caution, the theatre can be chilly, so you might want a sweater or jacket on hand.